

Catchin' The Fever: Bebop Love Blues

Music & Lyrics: Grace Testani
© Grace Notes Enterprises,
(with Library of Congress & BMI)
(written 1980)

You walked in and I knew
The moment I first laid my eyes upon you that
You and I would be more than just two friends that we knew.
But we both said no, this would never do
And we'd better not even begin so
You went your way and I went mine
Our love could not win.
But in my heart I knew that you were the one I'd waited for.
And I felt that you were thinking that we certainly could be
Two who would always care with honesty for the others feelings
And that we could share in the Joys and the heartaches
of our day to day lives.
So I said, "Hey, Hon, why fight?
We're catching the fever of makin' romance."
and
It was more that we hoped for; More than love at first glance.
--- (Coda) I knew the moment I saw you I'd love you,
so how could they call it pure chance?